

Uncle Carl and his antique car
Author: Obay Aloush
Illustrator: Radwa Askar

3asafeer.com

The original work of this book was made possible through the generous support of the All Children Reading: A Grand Challenge for Development (ACR GCD) Partners (the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), World Vision, and the Australian Government). It was prepared by Asafeer Education Technologies FZ LLC and does not necessarily reflect the views of the ACR GCD Partners. Any adaptation or translation of this work should not be considered an official ACR GCD translation and ACR GCD shall not be liable for any content or error in this translation.

When Ken goes to school every day, he gets worried he'd meet Uncle Carl on his way
If he meets him while he's starting his antique car, he'll end up trying to start up the engine with Carl His car doesn't easily start and in pushing it, lots of young men need to take part.

For Uncle Carl, his car was like a treasure he does hold.
Sometimes he'd say me and my car both of us are old.
When Uncle Carl gets into the car and hold the steering wheel tight
You feel like he came from a movie that's black and white.

One day Ken heard the mechanic Mark
Saying that the car goes on by a miracle
He doesn't know where the combustion lights get electricity from And the oil box is rusty and so is the water cooler .

His car reminds me of the first car invented before in France,
It had a steam engine and three wheels, what an incredible thing
Then came the German Mr. Benz. with a car that works with fuel
His invention was a revolution of course.

One of the big companies wanted to buy the antique car
But the reply was a big “no” from Uncle Carl
He refused all the money they gave at the end,
And he angrily said, “how can I sell a friend”

But I'm afraid, Uncle Carl might sell his car now Because of a financial crisis so...

Ken was so sad when heard the news
And decided he'll help him with all that he can do
He told his father what happened to Carl
He apologized because he can't do anything about his car
They paid lots of money for the new furniture
And couldn't help them for sure.

Then he remembered their wealthy neighbor Mr. Blair
But for the current problem he didn't even care.

He asked his friends who liked the idea and wanted to help
They might do something for Uncle Carl that would keep his car.

The people's contribution was really great They helped uncle Carl through his crisis and he thanked them for what they did.

THE END