Maysan a Manang ni Maria

Maria comes home from school excited to show her parents the star that her teacher gave her. But, she sees that her parents are busy with their new baby sister and hardly noticed her. Maria feels sad because she thinks that her parents have forgotten about her and only like to play with the new baby. Maria's father talks to her and shows her photos of when she was still younger. They think about the times when Maria could not yet feed herself, walk or reach things that are put on high shelves. Her father explains that, like her, the new baby also needs help since she is still very little. Maria, on the other hand, has grown and could now do many things by herself. Maria begins to understand and helps her mother and father take care of her baby sister.
